Hospitality School of the Cayman Islands

Director School of Hospitality Studies
Commencing Fall 2014

Salary: CI$60,972– CI$81,996

The School of Hospitality Studies of the Cayman Islands is seeking a dynamic, motivated and energetic person to lead the development of the School of Hospitality Studies. The ideal candidate must possess the ability and persuasiveness to encourage and engage both young and mature Caymanians who wish to enter the hospitality industry as a career of choice.

This is an interim appointment of six months duration, but the successful applicant is encouraged to apply for the permanent position, once that position is advertised.

The ideal candidate should have the following:

- Master’s Degree in Sociology, Human Capital Development and Tourism Management or other relevant degree.
- Minimum 7 years’ experience developing hospitality programmes and or curriculums.
- Strong knowledge about human capital development trends in the hospitality sector and other tourism industry sectors.
- Familiarity with professional training methods and certifications.
- Demonstrated experience in negotiations and new business development.
- Must be proficient and have strong working knowledge of Microsoft Applications and familiarity with instructional technology tools.

Experience and knowledge of the Caymanian Tourism Industry and ability to maintain, establish, develop and work with the tourism industry would be an asset.
